

Trucks For Change Gets Moving with Movematrix

Trucks For Change Network has announced the launch of MOVEmatrix, an online freight matching tool developed for the exclusive use of member trucking and charity partners.

The Trucks For Change Network, which was launched with the help of the Ontario Trucking Association, is a nonprofit association of leading Canadian trucking firms helping community charities with donated transportation services.

"MOVEmatrix offers our members a quick and secure way to find and respond to charity needs which match their available resources," said Pete Dalmazzi, president and founder of the Network. "It has all the features to become the one-stop transportation marketplace for charitable organizations across Canada."

MOVEmatrix was developed in a partnership between Trucks For Change Network and The Aidmatrix Foundation, a global leader in supply chain management technology for humanitarian relief based in Dallas, Tex.

"Trucks For Change Network's mission of connecting private industry with community charities is a creative and exciting application for our technology," said Keith Thode, Chief Operating Officer for The Aidmatrix Foundation. "We're proud to add them to our family of nonprofit partners."

Added David Bradley, president of the Ontario Trucking Association: "Many trucking companies already generously support their communities. Trucks For Change Network and its Movematrix technology will help them to do so more efficiently and at a lower operating cost. It's a win-win situation."

Canadian trucking firms and registered charities can apply for membership in Trucks For Change Network by clicking here.